1. The Soviet military authorities at Kuantung Peninsula have designated the northern part of the peninsula as an area of operations for the Chinese Communist Army.
This area is about 7 miles in width and about 38 (?) in length and extends from the east coast between Pulantien (121-59, 39-24) and Shihho (121-52, 39-20) to the west coast of the peninsula.
() Note: Distance across the peninsula in the area under discussion is not more than 22 miles.)
2. The Chinese Communists have recently constructed defense installations in the heights along the sea coast in the southeastern section of this area.
3. The Chinese Communist forces (excluding Peace Preservation Corps troops) in the area are designated as (? a unit of ?) the 7 Division of the Antung (?) 3 Column, commanded by TSENG Kuo-hua (曾國華).
4. In addition to carrying on operations in the above area, the Chinese Communists have over 4,000 PFC troops, reorganized from the former Puppet Manchurian forces, stationed along the railway between Sanshihiipao (121-48, 39-16) and Chinchou (121-43, 39-07). These PFC troops are controlled by the Kuantung Bureau Public Safety Department under PIEN Shen-chai (邊慎齋).
5. HSIAO Ching-kuang (蕭勁光) from the Shansi-Honan-Shansi Military Area originally organized the units of the Chinese Communist United Democratic Army which have been in the Dairen area since 1946. These units were reorganized from the Puppet Manchurian 11 Military Area. Four thousand youths were conscripted in the Dairen area and the 1 Garrison Division was set up under HSIAC, later 20,000 [?] were recruited from the Puppet Manchurian Police Force.

Note:

	HSIAO Chin-kuang was the commanding officer of the 4 PPC Brigade of Szechwan Province and that his unit was dispatched to Dairin by LIN Piao on 21 December 1946.)

6. In February 1947 HSIAO was transferred to Chefoo, Shantung. Beginning in March 1947 all the Chinese Communist units on the Kuantung Peninsula were reorganized into the PPC directly controlled by the Kuantung Bureau Public Safety Department. This PPC now has over 24,000 men, part of which are dispersed in the five districts of Dairen (Chungshan, Haikang, Linghien, Shahokou, and Chiharkou Districts) and have taken on the general appearance of being part of the police force, but actually are a well-organized army. Each district has a Police Battalion made up of about 1,500 PPC men in addition to a regular force of 500 police. These PPC units have ample supplies of Japanese rifles and ammunition. The middle ranking officers of the PPC have been promoted from the lower ranking staff officers of the New 4 Army in the area. The PPC units underwent two months Soviet military training during the months of April and June 1947.
